THE SIXTH SUNDAY OF EASTER

What is it that really counts when it comes down to the most essential elements of life? In the 15th chapter of St. John, we hear Jesus speaking to us shortly before his death. He is giving us the most important advice of our lives. He is, in a way, telling us what we must do if we want to be at peace and find happiness. And so he says: "This is my commandment, that you love one another as I have loved you." our love is what really matters in the sight of God. We will not be judged on anything else. This is not to say that our education or our work doesn't matter. If what we do helps other people, then our work can be a work of love. If we neglect to foster our relationships of love and caring, then we have not really been successful at life. True love does not only give gifts, but it respects the other as a gift from God. Those who are close to God, pay attention not only to God, but to God's people as well.

welcome.
