THE EIGHTEENTH SUNDAY IN ORDINARY TIME

Some might reflect, the greater part of our waking hours goes into providing for ourselves and for others. In addition, we grow up with our attention riveted on succeeding. We want to make sure we have enough for ourselves and our children. But then the strong consumerism of our society forces our standard of living to an even higher level. It is all too easy to become entangled in the things that are "passing away." we don't think about the possibility of its all ending suddenly and earlier than later. Today's scriptures are a reminder to keep a balanced view. We cannot risk to lose ourselves in this world and forget nor neglect that "which is above." it also tells us to use wealth generously while we are alive rather than have people fight over it after we are gone. Without calling for rigorous poverty, there is no doubting the fact that a simplicity of life keeps our vision clear. We want to be good providers and take care of the concerns that God has entrusted to us. We have to work diligently. But always keep the future life before us so that when the day comes to "move on", we shall have prepared well.

"When we take the time to look around and see all the beauty that God has created for us, do we ever stop for even a moment to think how amazingly beautiful heaven must be? If we do, does it cause us to pause and contemplate whether we are doing all we can to be sure we will one day see it? Deacon Herb Follow Deacon Herb on Facebook.
